Villiam provides economic analyses and arguments in legal and regulatory matters.

Villiam plays a central role with regard to merger control matters, advising clients from early assessment to clearance. His merger work spans horizontal, vertical, and conglomerate transactions, including transactions involving remedies.

In addition to national notifications, Villiam has worked on a number of large and complex mergers before the European Commission. His experience covers a wide range of industries, including biotechnology, transport, food and beverages, construction, and packaging.

Villiam also has specialist expertise in economic analysis for litigation and abuse of dominance cases, with a particular focus on damages claims, and advises clients on the economic aspects of competition law.

Villiam has a Master's degree in Economics from Aarhus University.
